Hello David,
dear Peter,

We have thought hard whether to demonstrate our feelings for our beloved sister Christel by coming to her funeral service. But as last week you told us by mail that you two people wanted to stay alone, and as there's nothing more to do for her, we'll step away from our first plan. Instead of visiting the funeral service, we have already informed all her German friends and relatives as she asked us to do; there were lots of people interested in her welfare; they are all very shocked by her death.

We think that everybody will have to mourn in his own way.

On Friday, 2.15 p.m. (in Germany 3.15 p.m) we will light some candles for her and remember her in a very special and personal way. We think that would be in her mind if we could ask her.

By the way a remark for you, Peter: never forget that you can find relatives in Germany who for Christel's sake are very interested in your well-being. You always can ask for help, if necessary.

We wish you enough strength

Georg & Gisela
